INDEX DESCRIPTION

The S&P World ex Australia GARP Index (AUD Hedged) is designed to provide investors with exposure to global companies with strong earnings growth, solid financial strength, and trading at reasonable valuations. The index is currency hedged to Australian dollars.

The index uses the following factors to filter companies:

- Growth – 3-year sales per share growth and earnings per share growth.
- Value – earnings to price ratio (i.e. another way of calculating the price to earnings [PE] ratio).
- Quality – financial leverage (i.e. debt levels) and return on equity (ROE).

Index Selection Process:

Companies in the investable universe are first ranked based on growth metrics, with the top 500 stocks eligible for inclusion. From there, the top 250 stocks are selected based on their Quality and Value scores to determine the final index constituents.

Each company's weight is calculated by multiplying its Float Market Capitalisation by its Growth score, subject to the following constraints:

- Minimum security weight of 0.1%.
- Maximum security weight of 5%.
- Maximum GICS sector weight of 40%.

The index is rebalanced semi-annually, and distributions are paid semi-annually.
